JANESVILLE WILL BE ON THE LINE

JOHN WALSH'S ROADS MAY BE CONSOLIDATED.

IS U. S. STILL INTERESTED?

Hinted That Corporation Has Connection—Bell Mills Included in Circuit.

Janesville is interested in the Walsh roads, the financing of which brought down the Chicago National bank and its associated institutions. For they probably will be consolidated with the Illinois, Iowa & Minnesota railroad, a belt line reaching around Chicago from the new steel town of Gary, Ind., to Janesville, and Milwaukee.

Are to Be Merged
The negotiations have for their purpose a consolidation of the interests and not an outright sale, and they contemplate the retention of John R. Walsh in a position of management, and through the successful termination of the plans Walsh hopes to realize his dream of becoming a railroad magnate.

The Facts
The fact of the negotiations was confirmed by W. F. McSwiney, treasurer of the Illinois, Iowa & Minnesota. The members of the clearing house committee, in whose hands the properties of Walsh is entrusted, is represented by John N. Falthorn, president of the Chicago Terminal Transfer company.

Big Deal
Behind the negotiations railroad men see the possibility of one of the biggest railroad deals that has ever engineered in Chicago for years. The Illinois, Iowa & Minnesota is said to be owned by St. Louis capitalists. It is understood, however, that the United States Steel corporation has some interest in it, either directly or under negotiation, and the fact that the road is to connect with the big steel mills at Gary is pointed to as confirmation.

The Plans
The line is now in operation between Moline, Ill., and Rockford, and surveys have been made to extend the line from Moline on the south to Gary and from Rockford on the north, through Beloit and Janesville to Milwaukee. For a portion of these surveys contracts have already been let and it is understood that there is ample capital behind the company for the completion of these connections.

Walsh Lines
John N. Falthorn's connection with the deal, it is understood, too, is more than merely that of an expert. It has long been rumored that the Chicago Terminal Transfer company has been desirous of getting possession of the Walsh lines and bringing them into Chicago over their tracks from Chicago Heights. Should this be part of the deal, it will mean that the Walsh lines will be connected with two belt lines, one an outer line and the other an inner line, that will give them an enormous advantage over other roads.

in splendid, even ranks, with their formation superbly kept throughout the entire parade," according to the dispatches, "came the first of the veterans—Columbia Post No. 706 of Chicago—acting as the personal escort of the commander-in-chief. This is the post which was tendered a reception on the depot platform in Janesville on Monday. It is considered," continue the dispatches, "one of the best grand army. Its showy uniform of dark olive green and its splendid marching called for tremendous applause. Behind the post came Commander-in-Chief Tanner attended by his personal staff."

ITEMS OF NEWS
FROM EVANSVILLE

Former Evansville Boy Drowned—
Other Gossip of the Town.

Evansville, Aug. 10.—The sad news has reached this city that Frank Jones was drowned in a river near Artesian, S. D. Mr. Jones formerly resided here and leaves a father and three brothers residing here, namely:
Ed, Jesse and Owen. Two sisters are also left to mourn—Mrs. Nina Graves, residing near La Crosse, and Miss Lottie Jones, a nurse in Chicago. The accident occurred Monday while the young man was swimming across the river. The brother, Jesse, took his departure Tuesday and will bring the remains to this city for burial by the side of the mother. It is expected a funeral will be held at the home of a relative near Artesian today and relatives here are awaiting a message from Jesse announcing arrangements for the funeral in this city. Frank was a young man of excellent qualities and his sudden death is a shock to all, and the father, brothers and sisters have the sympathy of a host of friends.

House Party
Miss Adelaide Evans and Mr. Burton Hollister entertained their many friends Tuesday evening at the home of Dr. J. M. Evans in honor of their visiting friends, the Misses Mary Hoffman of St. Louis, Elizabeth Jennings of Chicago and Constance Pennington of Janesville, who are guests at the Evans home, and the Misses Julia Loveloy and Elizabeth Wilcox and Stowe Loveloy of Janesville, guests at the Hollister home. The evening was spent in dancing. Miss Harris furnishing the music. Refreshments were served and a pleasant time was reported by all the young people.

1,000 HORSESHOERS
AT ANNUAL PICNIC

Seventy-five from Janesville Spent Yesterday at Washington Park, Below Janesville.

Horseshoers and their wives, children and friends to the number of a thousand gathered from Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin yesterday and held their annual picnic in the beautiful vale of Washington park, a Rock river resort, five miles below Rockford. The day was ideal and a well-arranged program made the event most enjoyable to all. Seventy-five from Janesville were present, making the trip over the electric line. The largest number of local people went on a special car at 8:15 in the morning. The other merry-makers came largely from Rockford, Beloit, Freeport, Belvidere, Harvard, Cherry Valley, Pecatonica, Rockton and nearby villages. In the morning there was speaking by members of the order from Rockford and Freeport, and singing by different organizations from the local branches. In the afternoon a Chicago league team defeated the Cherry Valley baseball club by a score of 2 to 1. Nolan of Rockford, the challenge champion rifle shot of the United States, gave an exhibition shooting five hundred cartridges, cutting the figure of a man in a cardboard, lighting matches held in the hand of an assistant and piercing the "blackspot" on an ace of spades held in the teeth of the same man.
There was also a horseshoe turning contest between two experts from Belvidere. In the evening dancing was in order. The majority of the Bower city representatives did not return home until the last car. All day music was furnished by the Woodman band of Rockford.

Preliminary arrangements were made for the picnic of 1937. Freeport was chosen as the place of festivities and officers of the picnic association were elected as follows:

President—John Sharp, Freeport.
Vice-President—Dan Leary, Janesville.

Secretary—P. H. Reynolds, Rockford.

SOMERSAULT TURNED
BY DRIVING HORSE

Animal Driven by J. B. Humphrey Performed Peculiar Feats on Milwaukee Street.

One of the most peculiar horse accidents, in fact almost an equestrian exhibition, occurred at the corner of Milwaukee and Main street, shortly after eight o'clock this morning. J.
B. Humphrey and Charles Kemmerer were driving in a single rig and as the animal crossed the car tracks on a walk it slipped. Before Mr. Humphrey could pull the horse to its feet again its head was down between the forelegs and a complete somersault was turned. The occupants of the runabout leaped and caught the frightened beast immediately. In the accident the horse's mouth was cut by the bit, one hind leg was broken and the harness somewhat damaged. A score or more of people witnessed the accident.

THOUSANDS OF CHILDREN

Will Be Guests of State Fair on Opening Day, September 10th.

School children of the entire state of Wisconsin will be the guests of the Wisconsin state fair on Monday, Sept. 10th, the opening day of the fair. All school children will be admitted free to the grounds that day. Under the direction of a Milwaukee committee the children will unite in a monster parade about the grounds. Prizes are to be offered for the schools showing the largest number of children in parade, and also to the schools showing to the best advantage. Before disbanding the children, accompanied by all the hands on the grounds, will join in singing two verses of America. Each child will be provided with a small American flag.

The Indian village, composed of from forty to fifty Indian men, women and children, will be a feature of particular interest to the children, and was provided largely for their particular entertainment and instruction.

The parade will start at about one o'clock and will be concluded by two o'clock, so as to give way for the opening of the splendid racing events, which are to be such a leading feature of the fair this year. The entries received for all departments indicate that the Wisconsin state fair this year will be the most comprehensive exhibit of the agricultural, horticultural, stock raising and dairy interests ever attempted in this state. The premium list is larger than ever before, and the amount of money offered for the racing events is larger than ever before, and in fact exceeds the amount offered by any fair in this part of the country.

Special reduced rates of one fare for the round trip will prevail during the entire state fair week.

CIRCUS FUN.

Ringling Brothers Carry Fifty Clowns
to Assure It.
A pleasing feature of Ringling Brothers' great circus is the small army of clowns. Fifty of them are busy from the first ring act to the last, in creating laughter. Usually they work in groups of three and four, far enough apart so as not to interfere, and reaching all the way around the huge hippodrome track.
Each group has an amusing panto-mimic skit to evolve, and provides its own properties. The grotesque "make up" of many is irresistibly laugh-making in itself, but when they get into action for fun, the merriment of the crowd frequently rises to a gale. It is well worth a long journey to watch the little ones at the afternoon performance. They are always present by thousands and make a human flower gallery of the great circus. To see their eyes widen, cheeks redden, and hear the musical laughing that floods from their rosy lips, would bring acute pleasure to the arteries of a graven image, supposing that such a cold cast had such blood lines of communication with head and heart. The clown in this fast age must be perfect in everything but eloquence. He must expert as a pan-tomimic actor, dancer, acrobat and inventor of grotesque ways, and means to kindle good humor. In Ringling Brothers' World's Greatest Shows there is an exclusive club, to which only are eligible those clowns that have achieved obviously striking results in interesting, and amusing the crowd, and those who have invented singularly fetching tomfoolery and property aids to accomplish ro-pacious fun. The slightest breach from the rigid rule of refinement is sufficient to cause any member to be dropped from the club if repeated after twice warned, and, of course, such a mistake would ruin the chances of any clown not a member, and, if

speech of Alfred Lyttleton, the late colonial secretary, who said the question of granting self-government was one of "how, when and where." In theory the granting of self-government to anybody has always been that in the minds of this type of conservative in England and elsewhere. His real answer to the question is "Never."

The constitution concedes a house, elected by manhood suffrage of sixty-nine members. Of these the Rand, which must not be confused with the mere town of Johannesburg, as it covers an area of 16,000 square miles including that city, gets thirty-three members. The rural district of Krugersdorp has one member, the Pretoria district six, and the rest of the Transvaal twenty-nine.

There are two considerable parties in the Transvaal, each divided to some extent. The Dutch, who are almost certain under this agreement of the twenty-nine seats in the rural districts and that of Krugersdorp, are divided into those willing to work amicably with the moderate section of the British, and a strong irreconcilable minority which calls itself, and likes to include all Boers in the name, Het Volk (the people). The British element, which should be reasonably sure of the thirty-three Rand seats and the majority of the Pretoria representation, is made up of the "Responsibles" and a small minority calling themselves "Progressives," who represent the extreme Rand capitalist view. There are four considerable labor organizations, but there is good reason for believing that in actual practice the labor element makes up in noise what it lacks in number.

One of the most important features of the new constitution has escaped notice in England, but is certain to be widely commented on elsewhere. This is the acceptance of the old Boer magisterial districts as the nuclei of the new constituencies. These districts are each made up of a number of field cornets, all centers for recruiting during the late war. Each of these also will certainly be a tolerably efficient election machine in the selection of the first Transvaal parliament. Machines are not greatly known in English politics, and the methods of Boer rural administration are not greatly understood outside of the South African colonies. The factor is nevertheless highly important, and it will probably be found that the Boers are better organized than the British.

It must be remembered that self-government is not being conceded to a people who never enjoyed it before. Consequently talk of inadequate preparation for the responsibilities of government has no value. The only possible education in that way in any case is by the exercise of the franchise, but elections under the Boer republic were nominally popular, even if President Kruger did the counting. The real question is whether the moderate element on both sides can together run the country by compromise. The new constitution gives them the best possible chance of doing so if it can be done at all.

Here is the guiding principle of the measure, and great indeed is the nation whose responsible minister can say this thing: "Our policy has been to make no difference in this grant of responsible government between Boer and Briton. We propose to extend to both races the fullest privileges and rights of British citizenship, and we intend to make no discrimination between men who have fought most loyally for us, and those who have resisted the British arms with the most desperate courage."

This has been our own national policy. Its success is a good augury.

PRESS COMMENT.

If It Ever Really Did. Milwaukee News: A casual glance at the billboards arouses the suspicion that the office has ceased to seek the man.

A Lead-Pipe Cinch. Rockford Register-Gazette: The Jansville plumbers beat the Rockford plumbers at baseball. They said it was a lead pipe cinch.

It Should Be Insulated. Chicago Tribune: Mr. Bryan will reach out boldly and pick up an issue as soon as he can find one with which he has not already burnt his fingers.

Pie For the Attorneys. DeJavan Republican: A Michigan millionaire lumberman has died leaving 27 wills. The lawyers will no doubt erect a monument to him.

Urging 'Em On. Exchange: Evansville, Ind., girls have formed a Single Blessedness club. We may safely regard this as merely another case of bean-balling.

Who Can Answer This? Superior Telegram: How does it happen that the law's "technicalities" are always in favor of the lawbreaker, and never in favor of the people?

Cut Off From Real Sympathy. Exchange: The Chicago Tribune is now suffering the pangs of having an Englishman for cartoonist when Chicago is baseball crazy.

Voters Still Quite Complacent. Beloit Free Press: The nomination papers are all in, but as yet the only ones who appear to be at all excited about it are the candidates themselves.

Roosevelt and La Follette. Louisville Courier-Journal: How about the platform Roosevelt is constructing? Who else than he can stand on it, with Bob La Follette for running mate?

Has the Name to Fit. Chicago Chronicle: A ranchman near Colorado Springs, Col., owns a calf which has a head like a lion and he is at a loss what to call it. Why not dub it Peerless Statesman?

Japan Will Stop That. Chicago Record-Herald: The Chinese have begun to build their own railroads and make their own rails. They'll get into trouble with Japan if they don't watch out.

Then We'll Know It's There. Appleton Post: When the news is waited wide that a man has been drowned in the Panama canal, we shall begin to believe there is something doing there.

To Be Kept in Mind. Racine Journal: The alleged stalwarts have brought no issues or contentions in this campaign and why then should others? Rivalries between Messrs. Davidson and Lenroot are none of their doings.

"Trying it on the Dog." Milwaukee Sentinel: The Milwaukee dog is taking kindly to the performance of a new theatrical production which Chicago managers are trying out. Milwaukee may become the western New Haven of the theatrical business.

Cassie Should Congratulate. Chicago Record-Herald: Ann Odella Diss DeBar, who has been in prison in England for the past five years, is out on a ticket of leave. Cassie Chadwick will not be doing the proper thing if she fails to send her a message of congratulation.

Where Lawyer Is Needed. Exchange: The Eau Claire Leader bits the nail on the head when it says: "While the state of Wisconsin does not need a lawyer in the governor's chair, it does want one—and the very best that can be found—in the office of attorney general."

Amazing, If True. Evening Wisconsin: Maybe it is an invention of the stalwarts—the report that Houser is on the La Follette slate for secretary of state. But if it is not an invention of the stalwarts—if it is really and truly a fact that Houser is the La Follette candidate—what do you think of that for reform?

Party Line Phone Complications. Los Angeles Express: Because Miss Dine, a Denver society girl, refused to cut off a long party line telephone gabfest with her young man to permit a hurry call being sent for a doctor, Millionaire Mullen said she was "no lady." Then Papa Dine's horse-whipped Mullen, who is suing for $50,000 damages. Thus does the party line telephone contribute to the general gaiety.

Freight Business on Interurban. Oshkosh Northwestern: It is reported that the new Chicago and Milwaukee Electric Railway company is planning to handle a heavy freight business as well as to take care of passenger traffic. As was suggested in these columns a few days since, it is only a question of time when practically every electric interurban road in the country will be handling freight in connection with the regular passenger business.

Beware, Elderly Rich Gentlemen! Chicago Chronicle: Elderly gentlemen of means and susceptibility will do well to seek seclusion during the ensuing election. Mrs. Mne. Ann Odella Diss DeBar is once more free from marital restraint and will undoubtedly be heard from pretty soon. Those who call her a coarse and clumsy swindler are ill advised. The astuteness with which Luther P. Marsh was humbugged fell very little short of actual genius.

Death Without Its Terror. Exchange: Mrs. Craigie ("John Oliver Hobbes") died in a way which most people will deem ideal. To spend a pleasant evening with friends and relatives in full enjoyment of love and companionship, to retire to rest happy and contented and to awaken in the next world—this is a transition to the other side of life which leaves nothing to be desired. If all of us could look forward to such a pleasing and painless passing death would have small terror.

Everybody Will Take Notice. Kenosha Telegraph-Courier: The man who enjoys a hot campaign is going to be right in his element for the next month, and even the man who "takes no interest" in politics is beginning to sit up and take notice. As a matter of fact, certain recent developments in the political situation call for the undivided attention of those voters who believe in a square deal, but who commonly leave politics very much to the politicians.

Even Dishonor—"For Home Town." Marinette Eagle-Star: It is gratifying to note that American settlers on the Isle of Pines are feeling confident now that the island will eventually be obtained by this government, and that the senate will certainly reject the treaty giving the island to Cuba and will adopt a resolution placing Uncle Sam in control. The Isle of Pines is owned and settled by Americans, many of them from this city. It never belonged to Cuba, and Cuba has absolutely no right to her, and should never have been allowed to exercise governmental action there.

Where Bob's Grouch Originated. Sturgeon Bay Advocate: Jones, the staff correspondent of The Chicago Inter Ocean, who has been dipping into Wisconsin politics pretty extensively of late, says that both Representatives Babcock and Minor have been marked for slaughter at the ensuing election by Senator La Follette. Well, if that be true, it is not the first time that a similar judgment has been passed on those two very much alive congressmen. La Follette wants only men in office who will bend the knee to his majesty, something that such patriotic American citizens as Babcock and Minor are in the habit of doing. That's where the La Follette grouch originated in the first place.

Connor's Service to State. Evening Wisconsin: If it had not been for Chairman W. D. Connor of the Republican State Central Committee, the voters of Wisconsin would have been perplexed and handicapped with a law of this sort. A bill to amend the new primary election law—a law which had never been used and was "as good as new"—was introduced in the legislature and its enactment was favored by Governor La Follette and Speaker Lenroot. Chairman Connor saw the disadvantage at which a Mary Ann law would place the people, and the advantage at which it would place professional politicians, skilled in calculating and shrewd in contriving. The voters of Wisconsin owe a debt of gratitude to W. D. Connor for defeating the Mary Ann bill.

Just Because He Doesn't Shout. Eau Claire Leader: Well, well, it remained for The Milwaukee Journal to give the keynote of what is to be the campaign against Governor Davidson, and it has done so in so cruel and crafty a manner that it should be resented by every friend of the candidate. So Governor Davidson is a "follower" and no "leader" is "honest" and "capable" and all that, but still only an unconscious tool of Mr. Connor and the bold, bad stalwarts—and he should retire, get out of the way—skiddoo. The Journal is a noted fence lance and dearly loves its own opinion, but when it puts Governor Davidson down for a "poor fool" it goes too far and it cannot hide its shame in two columns of sophistry or smart writing. Because a man is a good business man and isn't shuffling politics at all times is no reason why he should be barred from office.

Watches Instead of Medals. According to a Neuchatel correspondent, the watch factories in that town are extraordinarily busy, owing to a huge order for "War Watches" which has been received from the Japanese government. The watches are thin and of good finish, with oxidized metal cases, and are intended for presentation to the mikado's soldiers and sailors as mementos of their successes in the war with Russia.

Pabst Blue Ribbon

beer is made from Pabst exclusive eight-day malt and choicest hops with purest water. The barley from which the Pabst exclusive eight-day malt is made is a special carefully selected barley and developed in the natural way; in eight days it produces a malt rich in the food value of the grain. One eminent scientist says: "Pabst retains all the nourishment of the grain in his exclusive eight-day process of making malt and therefore Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer is the richest as well as the cleanest beer in the world." Only the choicest hops are used in the brewing of Pabst beer—thus, in addition to being the cleanest and richest beer in the world, Pabst Blue Ribbon is also the most healthful.

MANY VIOLATE MARINE RULES

LOCAL LAUNCHMEN SHOULD BE MORE FAMILIAR WITH RULES.

PROPER LIGHTS ON WATER

Government Lays Down Instructions for Rules of the Road—Penalty Is Provided.

Now that there are so many gasoline boats plying up and down the waters of Rock river the need becomes more urgent all the time that their captains should be familiar with the rules of the road and strictly observe the same, and also that they should carry proper lights at night. Both in the observance of the rules of the road and carrying of lights the government prescribes laws which must be followed under penalty. Of course these laws may be violated for a time with impunity, as has been done and is now being done, but the time will come when somebody will suffer. Particularly will this be true in case some serious accident occurs as a result of violation of the rules of the road or the regulations for the carrying of proper lights at night. In such a contingency as this the offending captain will have no defense whatever that will hold in court and he will be liable for all the damages that may result in the way of smashed boats or lost lives. It is easy to see that his neglect of the rules or neglect of providing the simple lights required may cost him everything he owns and perhaps send him to prison to boot. Men who are running around carelessly and lawlessly in motorboats either by day or night are playing with fire and some one sooner or later will get badly hurt. The rules of the road are so simple that they can be learned in one minute. Here they are:

Alter course to starboard and pass on port side of other vessel when meeting end on or nearly so. Follow this rule at night whenever both side lights of approaching vessel are visible across the beam.

When crossing, the vessel having the other on her own starboard side must not obstruct the other's passage. A power vessel shall not obstruct the passage of a sailing vessel.

Do not overtake and pass another vessel in a narrow passage.

The whistle signals indicating the course required are specified for all waters.

When a signal is received, answer with the same signal. One blast signifies I am directing my course to starboard.

Two blasts signify I am directing my course to port.

Three blasts signify my engines are full speed astern.

When nearing a bend in the channel sound one long blast.

Give whistle signals by day or night when other vessel signaled is in sight.

Reverse or cross signal should never be sounded.

Should the signal given be inadvisable or if the same is not understood, sound not less than four short and rapid whistle blasts. If remedied by conditions, both vessels shall reduce speed or stop, or reverse until proper signals are given or understood.

The requirement for carrying lights at night is as follows:

Lights must be carried on all vessels from sunset to sunrise.

White light must be placed forward visible over ten points of the compass on each side.

Red light placed on left or port side, visible from right ahead to two points abaft the beam.

Green light placed on right or starboard side, visible from right ahead to two points abaft the beam.

Combination lights, including the above, may be carried on open launches and sailing craft.

White light shall be on board a rowboat to be used in time to prevent collision.

Upon being overtaken by another vessel, a white light must be shown astern visible over twelve points of the compass aft.

Rules regarding side lights are to be complied with when vessel is under way and not otherwise.

A white light is to be shown, while at anchor, which is visible all around the horizon.

WERE WEDDED AFTER HOURS AT ROCKFORD

Frank Barlass and Miss Gertrude Reeder Found Attorney, Justice and Court Clerk Obliging.

Frank Barlass and Miss Gertrude Reeder of this city arrived in Rockford sometime after five o'clock last evening and despite the fact that the courthouse was closed and the justices had completed the day's work they were married. They found the Forest city accommodating and with the assistance of an acquaintance secured an attorney who arranged the details of the marital ceremony.

The couple departed from here on the 2:15 car and Mr. Barlass knowing a young man in Rockford sought him out. They were looking for a minister of the gospel or a justice, and the Rockford friend after a few words of ordinary conversation was asked if he knew where a justice could be secured. The Rockford man did not make a distinction between a justice and attorney and sent the young couple to Corporation Counsel Ferguson, and the latter waited a few moments until the pair reached his office, a "phone message having been sent that a client was on the way. When the "client" reached the office Mr. Ferguson was asked if he could perform a marriage or how one could be arranged. The attorney is not a maker of marriage vows, but sometimes assists in dissolving them, though this is not his long suit. Mr. Barlass told his story and was referred to the city legal adviser. "I cannot marry you, but can possibly manage to get a justice here if that will do," said Mr. Ferguson. "You have the license," inquired the attorney, and when the answer was in the negative it looked as though the couple might have to wait until the morning. Buzz went to the telephone and Mr. Ferguson soon was in communication with Miss Sue Sanders, an assistant at the county clerk's office, and she agreed to get a license if the prospective groom would call at her home and another telephone call secured the promise of Justice Norton to be on hand to tie the knot. Mr. Ferguson soon had one of the news gatherers of the city at his office as a witness and at 6:55 the justice started to say the words of the ceremony and three minutes later Mr. and Mrs. Barlass hastened down the stairs from Mr. Ferguson's office and got aboard the car for home. Mr. Barlass and Miss Reeder are well known in the Bower city and their friends extend them a happy welcome.

EDGERTON WOMAN IN DOMESTIC TROUBLE

Mrs. A. J. Millard of Rockford, Ne Miss Stevens of Edgerton, Leaves Husband.

After an alleged quarrel which resulted in abusive treatment of his wife, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Millard of Rockford have agreed to go their ways apart and she, who was Miss Stevens, has returned to Edgerton, her former home. The trouble was caused in the Rockford municipal court Tuesday morning, when Mr. Millard appeared on the charge of abusing his wife, a brother of the plaintiff, George Stevens, preferring the accusations, Mrs. Millard being adverse to getting in the public gaze. She claimed that the two engaged in a few words downtown Monday evening and later Mr. Millard came home and injured her by hurling house decorations and small pieces of furniture at her. He denied the charge but yesterday the matter was amicably settled. Mr. Willard, at the request of his wife gave up $75 of $120 which he had deposited in a bank. In a conversation prior to the settlement the wrangling pair showed much devotion for each other and spectators express the belief that a reunion will soon occur.

HAVING A BIG TIME IN THE CREAM CITY

Charles B. Conrad is the first of the Janesville Visitors to Return from Eagles' Celebration.

Charles B. Conrad, who arrived from Milwaukee this morning, is the first of the Janesville visitors to return from the big convention and celebration of the Eagles.

The illuminations, both public and private were on a scale of grandeur never surpassed in Wisconsin, according to Mr. Conrad.

Last night the $25 appropriated by the lodge to be devoted to some public charity, under the direction of J. J. Cunningham, was judiciously expended and everybody in the Bower City delegation had a good time.

The rest of the big party is expected home this evening.

Pleasant Antiseptic.
Antiseptic methods are becoming popular with the country barbers in England. A man dropped into a village shop the other day and was shaved. Then came a wash by a sponge whose odor suggested the morgue. The victim's face was burned like fire. "What on earth have you got on that sponge?" he demanded. "Ah," answered the villager, proudly, "I washed the sponge in the air," "That's carbolic acid. It's so safe!"

LOCAL PARAGRAPHS

Broke Into Fragments: The members of the class of 1901 of the Janesville high school will be grieved to learn that the statue, given by them to the school upon leaving as a token, fell from the wall yesterday morning and was broken into fragments.

Culvert 300 Feet Long: The culvert which J. H. Watson and his men have commenced building under the direction of City Engineer Kergh, in the Washington street wash-out is to be 300 feet long and will cost in the neighborhood of $2,000.

Wouldn't Work Underground: One of Street Commissioner Sennett's men balked yesterday when he was requested to get down under Milwaukee street and spread the sand which is being dumped through a hole into the raceway channel. Neither the atmosphere nor the darkness of the place is likely to appeal to anyone but a miner, and a pretty tough miner at that.

Capt. Fleming Resigns: Capt. Fleming of the Salvation Army, as a result of a nervous breakdown caused by overworking, has been compelled to relinquish his position at the head of the local Salvation Army Post. He has done excellent work in Janesville since coming here last January and the circumstances which oblige him to withdraw from the field will be regretted. Capt. Napp of Chicago is to be his successor and is expected here Sunday.

Hurt in Fall From Car: While at work loading here yesterday D. M. Wolf of Chicago lost his footing and fell from a car, sustaining serious injuries about the limbs. It was found upon examination by a physician that no bones were fractured and he was able to depart for his home in Chicago on the 6:30 train.

Camping at Squaw Lake: Provided with a tent, bedding, and all the necessary cooking utensils, Malcolm and Don Jeffris left yesterday for Squaw Lake, which is located in the northern wilds near Jeffris, Wis. They will camp for several days in a locality inhabited largely by Indians.

Swam the Lauderdale Lakes: Elbridge Fifield, fourteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fifield, recently swam through the three Lauderdale lakes—a distance of about two and one-half miles—in 12 minutes.

Friends kept alongside him in a rowboat over the course and when the young man had finished he was not only not exhausted but quite fit for another mile.

Paving Preparations: The work of excavating for paving in the alleys about the postoffice, both the thoroughfare parallel to Milwaukee street between that avenue and Dodge street and the connecting by-alley at right angles to Dodge street, has been commenced.

St. Aloysius Picnic: Though no definite arrangements have been made it has been decided to hold the annual picnic of the St. Aloysius society of St. Patrick's church at Harmon park during the last days of August.

Week at Lake Beulah: Dean E. M. McGinnity of St. Patrick's parish is spending the week at Lake Beulah, a beautiful summer resort in eastern Wisconsin on the Wisconsin Central railway.

Delay Work: A misunderstanding between men-hauling stone to South River street and other employees caused them to quit and the work was delayed somewhat.

No Hunting Licenses Yet: Hunting license blanks have not yet arrived, though sixteen or more applicants have already made their calls on County Clerk Howard Lee. The state game warden blames the state printing office for the delay. He says that the order for the new blanks was put in as early as last March.

Going Ahead: George Ferring, the well known star third baseman of the Beloit College team and later a member of the Rockford city team, is putting up a phenomenal game this season at Omaha. It is reported that George Huff has bought him for one of the big league teams, but which one is not known. It has been known for some time that the major league has been after the fast third baseman, and that it was only a question of time when he would be there.

Called the Police: A telephone call was sent in to the police station this morning that a "hobo" was creating a disturbance near the St. Paul roundhouse. Officer Champion soon arrived, but found his man peacefully minding his own business and only waiting for free transportation. He was later seen boarding a freight train toward Chicago.

Officer Morrissey Off Duty: Officer Fred Beneke who has been enjoying his vacation of ten days with his family at the Löffingwell cottage up river, resumed his duties today and Officer Thomas Morrissey began his vacation this morning.

Bob Fitzsimmons Coming: Robert Fitzsimmons, the pugilistic hero, and his wife are coming here with a dramatic company on October 3. Charles Erin Pilson is to appear in "The Rose of Killarney" on Sept. 1, matinee and night, and William Owen is to be here in "Romeo and Juliet" next week Thursday.

OBITUARY

Beatrice Brown
Death entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown, 162 1/2 South Franklin street, shortly before noon today and took to the world beyond their little daughter, Beatrice Ethel. The infant was taken sick with whooping cough several weeks ago and the demise was the result of complications which followed. The child was a year old and to mourn her demise, besides the parents, are a twin sister, Bernice, and an older sister, Georgia. Mr. and Mrs. Brown have the sympathy of a host of friends. The funeral services will be held from the home Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Edward Bernard
Funeral services over the remains of the late Edward Bernard will be held tomorrow morning at 9:15 o'clock from St. Patrick's church. Interment will be in Mount Olivet cemetery.

Rev. Tippet, Tied Knot: Edward Damon and Mrs. Ella Meeks were wedded yesterday afternoon at the Methodist parsonage by Rev. J. H. Tippet. The groom is a brakeman on the North-Western railroad.

DUKE OF DEVIL-MAY-CARE

BY HARRIS DICKSON
AUTHOR OF "THE BLACK WOLF'S BREED"
COPYRIGHT, 1905 BY D. APPLETON & CO.

Duke bailed the boat, rowed over and took one more shot, but the fish was already dead.

"I've got mine," he shouted, looking round to see where Riah was. Then he and Anita burst into one simultaneous whoop.

Riah had captured a tartar. He was standing upright in his dugout like a circus rider, holding to the line and literally dying. His dugout did not stir up water like the skiff. In fact, it scarcely seemed to touch the water at all.

"Better get outen de road, Mister Duke," he shouted, "we're runnin' away."

Suddenly the gar whirled and snapped Riah off the end of the line, head over heels into the lake. The black face came up instantly, blowing and puffing. He caught his dugout, and, by a quick jerky motion back and forth, dashed out every drop of water. He had climbed into it again before Duke and the skiff could reach him.

"GOOD-BY, MR. DUKE."

"Huh! thowed me, didn't he? Gyar-fish tricker'n a mule." Riah picked up his paddle and went after the fish again.

The sun shone down so fiercely that they were forced to be content with a single prize. They picked up Anita's bonnet and started back, towing their gar to the landing place. When they stepped ashore their combined strength could not lift the huge fish from the water.

"Oh, dear, we can't get him out; I'll have to call some one."

Anita turned, and Mrs. Ashton confronted her. "Oh!" she gasped, "when did you come?"

"I came a little bit too late, it seems," Mrs. Ashton replied frigidly. "Go straight to the house, Anita; get out of this sun; put on some dry clothes; you are a sight."

Duke kept tugging at the gar, with a cold chill running up and down his back. He knew what was coming.

"All right," Anita said, and she even dared to laugh. "Good-by, Mr. Duke, I am very glad to have met you."

Duke had not had time to nerve himself, but he looked around and saw Mrs. Ashton glare at Anita as the girl held out her hand to him. Their eyes met, and then he did not care a snap for what Mrs. Ashton might have to say.

Anita wrung the water from her bonnet and went tripping up to the house, as smilingly as if she did not understand.

"Mr. Duke—"

"Mrs. Ashton—" They stood face to face, and he looked as sober as a judge.

"Noel Duke," the old lady blazed out, "what do you mean, sneaking around when my back is turned—what do you mean?"

"His face flamed; he was not a patient man at best. Then he answered quietly:

"Mean? I mean to marry her, unless she tells me no."

CHAPTER IV.

THE BEGINNING OF WRATH.

The grim gray mystery of a February twilight came sinking through the swamp. At the edge of the clearing, where the circling forest broke, an occasional glimmer blurred the window of a cabin—blurred it with a faint light that choked and strangled in the fog. Afar off, some belated negro was chopping wood for supper.

The muffled strokes of his ax boomed dully among the deadened trees, where stark white cottonwoods thrust their naked arms into the sky.

The mist, clammy and vague and full of sinister suggestion, crept out of the cypress brake, and spread like a slow-unrolling shroud across the level fields of Devil-May-Care plantation.

Not an inch of dry land remained, nothing except that thin long line of levee—one slender thread of certainty through the realm of the unreal.

The Devil-May-Care store and residence were built close to the levee, with their galleries fronting it. A bridge made of a single plank crossed the pools of seepage water from each gallery to the levee; for this levee, this narrow ridge of dirt, had now become the universal highway along the river front.

Noel Duke strode out on his gallery. A trail of light streamed through the door behind him, flashed across the crown of the levee, and glittered on the steadily rising Mississippi which crouched like a famished wolf outside, licking at the

The young man scarcely glanced at this omnivorous monster which threatened his property with destruction, nor yet at the impenetrable gloom which overhung his land. To his right lay the eddying yellow river, to his left a sea of mist, with ghost-like trees arising from it.

In all of his undisciplined life nothing had ever fretted him as the last few months had done; months of waiting, of watching for opportunities, months of subterfuges and rebellion against them. A thousand times a day he wished that Mrs. Ashton were a man—he might take his own methods with a man. She had brought their ancient feud very near a crisis, and, like a bull, the thing got sorer as it was coming to a head.

"Well," he said, stopping in his walk, "I'll go up there to-night and settle it; the longer I put it off the worse it gets. She can't set the dogs on me—damn it, I wish she could."

It would have been a genuine relief for him to have had something tangible to fight.

He leaned against the banister and looked around at his vapor-hidden fields, his plain little dwelling. "It would be mighty dismal here, for a girl," he admitted, and could not wonder that Mrs. Ashton preferred her niece to marry Woodford Vance, who had come down from New York during the Christmas holidays.

When out hunting one day he had seen this man riding along the road with Anita—a blond fellow, with curly hair, and a laugh that might have seemed very pleasant to some people. That laugh kept ringing in Duke's ears, whenever he felt most irritated he recalled the buoyant laughter of Woodford Vance.

From one of the coops in the yard an indignant game-cock crowed his protest against the fog. Duke smiled. "Blest if I hadn't forgot the cocking-male at Vicksburg. Let me see—it begins to-morrow."

Then he marveled at the change that had come over him. Miss a cocking-male to which he had been looking forward for six months? Incredible! Ship a dozen cocks to Vicksburg, with Scraper, the best cock that ever crowed, and then not go to see them—fight? Incredible!

"Love is very curious," he thought, and began pacing the gallery again.

At his next turn he saw Chalky jogging down the road toward him, as if all eternity were his.

"Hurry up, Chalky—hurry up," he shouted, running across the plank that reached from his gallery to the crown of the levee. The negro spurred on, and held out a note. Duke glanced at it.

"You infernal thick-headed fool, that's my note; didn't you have sense enough to deliver it?"

"Tain't nobody dar, Miss Anita, she's done gone, an' Miss Alice, an' Mrs. Ashton—all done gone to Vicksburg on de Sultana."

"Didn't she leave a message with Aunt Tilly?"

"No, suh. Aunt Tilly say Mrs. Ashton is been feelin' polly, an' dey all lef' in er mighty big hurry. Dey's gwine to Maddy Gray, an' dat young gemmin' from New York he's gwine to meet 'em—de one what was here Crissum."

"Who told you that?"

Duke's voice was a menace, and the negro answered quickly:

"Jinny, she's de yaller gal what waits on Miss Alice! she heard Miss Alice an' her ma talkin' 'bout it. Fo' God, Mister Noel, don't you never tell dat; I sho is scared o' Mrs. Ashton."

"Going to meet Vance?" There was such an ugly gleam in the man's eye that Chalky wished he had not told him.

Duke consulted his watch and shut it with a vicious snap. He took one look at the bottomless road, which led eastward through the swamp, and turned to Chalky.

"Put a saddle on old Beck; she knows that road at night. I want to catch the south-bound train at Rolling Fork."

He ran a few yards down the levee and crossed to the store by another plank. "I'm going to town, Harper," he called in at the door. "Look after things."

"Oh, Mr. Duke," the manager ran out and protested; "that rise in the river is due to hit here about to-morrow, and the levees may break; you oughtn't to—"

"Damn it, Harper, I know I oughtn't to go, but I'm going, anyway."

"But, Mr. Duke—"

"That's enough, Harper; you are paid to do what I tell you, and when I want your infernal advice, I'll ask for it. You and the whole place may go to the devil for what I care."

He stamped angrily out of the store. Merritt, the clerk, finished rolling up a bolt of calico, and glanced sullenly toward Harper, who was still standing where Duke had left him, in the middle of the floor.

Duke's attack on him had been so vicious and so unexpected, that for a moment or two Harper did not comprehend; he thought it must be some stupid sort of a joke.

But as the other wheeled and left the store, Harper's face flushed; then it turned very white. He took two impetuous steps toward the door, and stopped. His color came back, and his smile came back.

"I don't see how you can take that, Mr. Harper," Merritt said, resentfully, leaning across the counter.

"I couldn't—from any other man."

The two or three negroes who had been drying their feet around the stove were already slipping out of the back door—it was not wise for them to mix up in white men's quarrels.

"Come back here, boys," Harper called, peremptorily. His authority on the plantation was at stake, for a white man in the swamp must cover every inch of ground he stands on, or he cannot hope to control half a thousand negroes.

The negroes came back reluctantly, keeping their eyes on the door through which their angry master had disappeared.

"Boys," Harper said to them, "something must be wrong with Mr. Duke; you know he never talks that way to the meanest nigger on his place—and you know that I don't take foolishness from anybody."

"Yassuh, yassuh," Uncle Reggy assented. Regulus Jones was "Mister Noel's pet nigger," so the other darkeys said.

"I sho did think dat was mighty curyus, o' Mister Noel—he musser been kinder pestered in 'is min'! I spec—" Uncle Reggy stopped; a sudden step on the gallery put a period in the middle of his sentence.

Noel Duke reappeared in the door, corduroys, slouch hat, leggings—he plunged on, head down, not looking where he went. The negroes made ready to run. He stopped, looked up.

"Harper," he said, holding out his hand, "I made a fool of myself just now; I'm sorry."

"That's all right, Mr. Duke, I didn't think anything about it. I knew you must be worried about something."

"I am. I must go to Vicksburg for a few days; the plantation is entirely in your charge. If the levees should break, do whatever you think is necessary to save the stock and take care of the tenants. Good-by, Harper, good-by, Merritt. Give these boys a drink; they've been working hard all day. Good night, boys."

Fifteen minutes later a man and mule turned their backs upon the river and disappeared through the mists along a road that was more passable for boat than beast. Through the dark and the mud they floundered on the sure-footed mule picking her way unerringly to the highest ground.

"I'll go to that cock-fight just to show her that I don't care," Vance is rich; he lives in New York; he can give her—"

Then his cheek grew red, even in the blackness of the swamp, that he should impute such motives to Anita Cameron. He had only to think of her clear eyes and broad fair forehead to be ashamed.

"That old woman is at the bottom of this. I'd break every bone in her body if she were only a man."

He shut his lips very tight, and the mule stumbled on.

Tree of Death.

The Koreans are greatly excited over the appearance of a bamboo tree through the cracks of the floor of the room last occupied by the late General Min Young Whan, says the Korea News. Since the suicide of the general in November last, the room has been kept closed, and when the room was opened a few days ago the bamboo had already attained the height of more than four feet. The Koreans find a parallel to this phenomenon in an event that occurred in Sogodo 500 years ago when a patriot defender of the emperor was doomed to death on a stone bridge just outside the city. Several months after his death a bamboo sprouted up between the stones of the very spot where the patriot had breathed his last.

BOSS TRUCKMAN A BOY.

Twelve-year-old Running a Big Business While Father is Sick.

"Say, sergeant, I sent a dozen teams out this afternoon, and they haven't any light, so if you see them shoot them around the back way. I ain't got no $3 to pay for fines."

Thus spoke twelve-year-old Johnny Farley of New Rochelle, N. Y., who is conducting his father's business while the latter is at death's door in the Pottsville hospital, Manhattan, says the New York Times.

Police Sergeant Cody was so impressed by the lad that he called him up on the telephone the other morning to learn if the teams got home safely.

"You bet they did, sergeant. You're a brick all right, and I won't forget your favor," was the answer the sergeant received.

John V. Farley conducts a livery and trucking business in New Rochelle. He attended to the office work personally, and when he was taken to the hospital his mind was on the business, as he did not know whom to get to run it.

"Don't you worry, pop; I'll jump in and run the business," were Johnny's words before his father was placed on the operating table. The father told him to go ahead. Johnny was placed in absolute control and so far has not made a mistake. New Rochelle men who do business with the Farleys are taking an interest in the youngster because of his grit.

NEVER TOO OLD FOR GOLF.

British Experts Decide That It May Be Played While Life Lasts.

Dr. T. C. Allbutt, regius professor of physics at Cambridge university, recently gave out the dictum that the law ought to forbid any man to begin playing the game before he is thirty-five years old, until which time he is capable of more vigorous athletics.

Dr. Allbutt, according to a London cable dispatch to the New York Sun, left it to be inferred that golf should only be regarded as a kind of last resort for those tottering down hill toward senility.

The presentation of the golf problem in this form led to inquiries among the best known exponents, and amateurs of British athletic games. As a result the following table was compiled, representing theories as well as practice.

Cricket should be abandoned at 40 years; football, 30; hockey, 35; lawn tennis, by women, 45, and by men 60; rowing, 60. The age for quitting cycling was not definitely fixed.

According to the table, golf should be played while life lasts, but should not be begun too young. Scotland's ice sport, curling, alone takes no regard for time, but looks forward to eternity.

"UNCLE JOE" NAMED FOR CONGRESS AGAIN

Other Political Gossip from Illinois and Virginia on Today's Conventions.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
 Watseka, Ill., Aug. 16.—If there is any luck in the sequence of numbers, as some persons believe, the supporters and admirers of Speaker Cannon may find cause for congratulation in the fact that on this, the sixteenth day of the month, "Uncle Joe" was named for a seventeenth term by the republicans of the Eighteenth district. If Mr. Cannon saw any good or bad omen in the 16-17 combination he gave no indication of it, nor did he commit himself to either convention, with shouts and cheers, made it known that he was the choice of his home district for the presidency. The republicans of this district have met seventeen times to name "Uncle Joe" as their candidate for congress, but never before was the choice registered with so much genuine enthusiasm and evidence of admiration for their venerable representative. In addition to the regular delegates there were scores of visitors in attendance, including a good-sized coterie of republican politicians from Chicago.

Renomination for Rives
 Springfield, Ill., Aug. 16.—Representative Zeno J. Rives was renominated today at the republican congressional convention of the Twenty-first district. There was no opposition. The democratic convention also is in session here. Indications point to Ben F. Caldwell of Chatham as the candidate.

In 24th Illinois District
 Carmi, Ill., Aug. 16.—The republicans of the Twenty-fourth congressional district met in convention here today and named Representative Pleasant T. Chapman for another term.

Illinois Congressional Conventions
 Chicago, Aug. 16.—Under the new state primary law both democrats and republicans hold their congressional nominating conventions today. There are ten districts within the Chicago city limits and all at present are represented in congress by republicans. Each of the ten incumbents is a candidate for renomination and seven of the number are without opposition in their own party. The renomination of all ten of the representatives is assured.

The democratic candidate, as decided by the recent primary, will be: First district, Martin Emerich; Third, Willis C. Stone; Fourth, J. T. McDermott; Fifth, A. J. Sabath; Sixth, E. J. Stack; Seventh, F. Buchanan; Eighth, Stanley H. Kunz; Ninth, Quinn O'Brien. In the Second and Tenth districts the democrats had no candidate at the primary.

In 25th Illinois District
 Cairo, Ill., Aug. 16.—The republican convention is in session here today to name a candidate to make the race for congress in the Twenty-fifth district. George W. Smith of Murphysboro is the probable nominee.

Lowden Named for Congress
 Freeport, Ill., Aug. 16.—Frank O. Lowden, son-in-law of the late Geo. M. Pullman and erstwhile aspirant for the governorship of Illinois, was named for congress today by the republican convention of the Thirteenth district.

To Oppose Congressman Slomp
 Bristol, Va., Aug. 16.—The democrats of the Ninth district are holding a convention here today to decide upon a candidate to oppose Representative Campbell Slomp, the only republican member of the Virginia delegation in congress. From present indications the honor will go to Judge Duncan of Lee county.

JAS. K. M'CURDY'S "OLD CLOTHES MAN"

Melodrama Built on Conventional Lines Pleased Good Sized Audience Yesterday.

Fairly good sized audiences attended and found much pleasure in the afternoon and evening performances of the melodrama, "The Old Clothes Man," at the Myers theatre yesterday. It must be admitted, however, that those who were expecting from James Kyrle MacCurdy a character delineation so out-of-the-ordinary, so real, sincere, and generally worth while as to merit a permanent place in memory's art gallery, were somewhat disappointed. His work, while it may be said to be very good, reveals nothing that approaches inspiration or genius. The Yiddish traits and mental attitudes with which he attempts to endow his old clothes man fail to convince because they are built up and sustained only by a few commonplace tricks of voice, movement, and gesture and such obvious expedients as the driving of a sharp bargain and the watering of garments with a sprinkling pot for a "fire sale" in the first act. After that he beats a drum for the Salvation army, gives with some gusto a flowery toast at a banquet, and does other things as incongruous and unexpected of the misunderstood, misused, pathetic, but brave and altogether admirable character the actor is seeking to portray. The play is built along conventional lines and on a rather slender and improbable pretext the onlooker is carried to the denouement in some very interesting looking matches in the last act. The lost daughter is found before the sympathy of the audience for the old man's distress has been sufficiently aroused, and throughout the play there is the same lack of that fine and gradual preparation for tense scenes and startling climaxes, which one has learned to expect, even in melodramas. However, the scene of Solomon Levi's first meeting with the lost Rachel is played with admirable restraint by both principals and the dramatic moment when Levi relinquishes the fortune he has so suddenly acquired is most adequately realized. The entire play and its rendition met with the approval of the audience, but at no time aroused enthusiasm.

UNIVERSITY FOR MEXICO

To Be Founded in 1910 to Celebrate Centennial of Independence.

Commissioned by President Diaz of the republic of Mexico to observe the workings of the University of California and Stanford university in order that the National University of Mexico, which is to be founded to celebrate the first centennial of the independence of Mexico in 1910, may be modeled after the best in these two great American universities, Dr. Ezequiel A. Chavez, subsecretary of public instruction and fine arts, is in Berkeley, Cal., says a correspondent of the San Francisco Chronicle. He is to give a course of lectures at the summer school of the University of California on the "History, Institutions and Progress of Mexico." His connection with the state university during the summer school is incidental to his work as a commissioner. He accepted the invitation in order to get an insight into the methods and administration of this university.

Dr. Chavez said recently: "I am here to observe. The school system of Mexico is unique. It has had its own development. It is not Spanish. It is not American, but Mexican. There are, first, the primary, then the grammar and high schools and finally the preparatory and professional schools. There is no university in the American or European sense. There are faculties of law, agriculture, fine arts, medicine, engineering, architecture, arts, crafts and other cities of the republic, but they are entirely separate and distinct. On the occasion, however, of the one hundredth anniversary of the independence of Mexico in 1910 all these various faculties will be welded together into a national university."

Senior Chavez is the leading psychologist of Mexico. He was professor of psychology in the preparatory before his appointment to his present position as secretary. He has done important service in rendering into Spanish certain classics of logic and ethics, notably Mills' logic and Spencer's ethics. His latest translation is the "Primer of Psychology" by Professor Titchener of Cornell.

GIRL'S REMARKABLE SHOT.

Ten-year-old Killed a Deer at a Hundred Yards.

Jean Boalt Wheeler, the ten-year-old daughter of Attorney Charles Stetson Wheeler, and niece of Benjamin Ide Wheeler, president of the University of California, has distinguished herself as a markswoman by shooting a deer at 100 yards straight through the heart, says a San Francisco dispatch.

"Little Jean" was up at her father's country home, the Bend, on the McCloud river, with her parents and Benjamin Ide Wheeler when she made the remarkable shot. The child was on horseback with others of the party and carried a rifle. She was ahead of the rest when 300 feet ahead of her she saw a buck with head high in air.

The animal turned suddenly and was about to bound away into the woods when little Jean raised her rifle and fired. The deer fell dead. It weighed ninety pounds after it was dressed.

Harvesting by Telephone.

J. A. Frambers of Oxford, Mo., has put the telephone to a new and novel use, says the Kansas City Journal.

Summer country is covered with a network of rural telephones. All told there are more than 3,000 telephones in the county. Mr. Frambers kept his thrashing outfit in constant communication with these telephones. He is a member of the Oxford Mutual company and has had a telephone installed in his cook shack. Whenever Mr. Frambers moves his thrashing outfit on to a farmer's premises his cook shack telephone is immediately connected with the telephone wire running along the highway, and no matter how far out in the country he may be Mr. Frambers and his cook are in constant communication with the grocers, butchers and other supply houses. Mr. Frambers can also call up almost any farmer in the county to talk thrashing to him, and the "next" man on Mr. Frambers' list can simply by using the telephone in his home learn just when the thrashermen will arrive at his place.

Planting for Cross Ties.

The railroads have to come to it sooner or later. Cross the wood is becoming so scarce that the cost of it is almost prohibitive. Some of the railroad companies have started in to cultivate trees to be used as cross ties, says the Mobile Register.

The Louisville and Nashville company is one of these. One of the plantations is near Carney station, Baldwin county, where a tract of a thousand acres of former forest land is now cleared for replanting. The effort will be made to get the greatest crop possible to the acreage. The ground was plowed and harrowed and worked as if grain or cotton were to be planted. The intention is to push the tree growth and get a record for reference. The trees will be planted seven feet apart in two directions.

According to Circumstances.

A man never talks much about the "sweetness" of a cob pipe so long as he has money to buy cigars.—Topeka Capital.

STATE NOTES.

Figures of the department of commerce and labor show that Sheboygan has far out-distanced any city in the state in per cent of increased wages and factory output in the five years between 1930 and 1935. The number of manufacturing plants increased 22.5 per cent, the capital of the factories was increased 68.1 per cent, the clerical force was increased 56.6 per cent, the number of employees was increased 20.9 per cent, and wages show a gain of 39.5 per cent.

The Kenosha Milk Dealers' association, said to be a trust on a small scale, has announced an increase in the price of milk for Kenosha and it is probable that action will be brought against the dealers charging conspiracy.

The gasoline launch Tony, owned by Lohar Graef of Appleton, which a week ago caught fire and sank, following a gasoline explosion, has been raised and stripped, and sold for $10. The original cost was $1,200.

Oliver Dusold, married, and the father of two children, is under arrest and held in $700 bonds on a charge of an attempt to assault 11-year-old Clara Klingbell.

John Kelly, driver of an ice wagon at Rockland, was killed by falling to the ground and breaking his neck when his team ran away.

The body of Robert Thomas of Freeport, Ill., a brakeman on the Illinois Central road, was found today at Madison. He drowned a week ago Sunday.
